The More We Care to Tell

Who and what I care about Is part of who I am.

Also how I fear the worst

When I'm in a jam.

Knowing about how I feel
Is part of knowing me.
How well you know my heart depends
On what I let you see.

With you, my tender sweetheart I want to share it all.
When you look into my heart
There shouldn't be a wall.

So I will make the effort To tell you how I feel. It may be like an onion In layers as I peel.

And as our hearts grow closer
As we share tenderly
I'll get to know the real you
And you the real me.

Our aim is to be fully known And deeply loved as well, Growing in our closeness The more we care to tell.
